The manner of building a wide roof gives the opportunity of planning several rooms in the attic The house shown in this design makes good use of the root space that is ordinarily given to the storage of old shoes.

This is a good-sized house for a large family. It was designed especially for a town or village where the lots are liberal in size. It has a goodlooking, prosperous appearance, as though the family feels proud to own

It is built with a good cellar for the foundation, the wall of which is put up just above grade line. From the cellar wall the construction is of studding in the ordinary way, except that milt in the usual way.

Each of the four bedrooms has a fine out look, the upper ones being lighted by wide multiple windows, which provide ample light even on dark days A large linen closet in the upper hall is the very thing that all house-keepers want. Few houses have convenient storage for extra bedding, that always is in the way in the summer unless some prevision of this kind is made to take care of it. A house built for a large family should have plenty of storage, because each member of the family has certain articles that require special accommodation at certain times during the year. The housewife always finds something to store away and often is puzzled to find a suitable place for such things.

The general style of this house is a modification of the old plan of utilizing gables, but the new style of former varies the gable monotony fact, gables generally look well when they are necessary to finish the end of a roof, but they seldom look well when built especially to light a bedroom. The building of a chimney exposed like this chimney almost always improves the appearance of the gable end of a house. The exposed part of the chimney, however, should treated in conformity with the general style of the house. The finish of the chimney should be in keeping with the other outside decorations. KEEP BUTTER DURING WINTER

To Retain Its Quality Temperature of Cellar Should Be Maintained as Low as Possible.

A supply of butter that will keep through the winter is much desired on most farms, but many find it difficult to produce it. There are two or three secrets that must be observed. First, if the cellar is musty, it must be carefully scraped and cleaned and the side walls and ceiling swept. Then it will be well to whitewash it carefully with a little formaldehyde in the lime. To spray it with a force pump is easy. Fumigation with at least a pound of sulphur is another way of destroying the must germs. The cellar should be closed tightly for several hours while the fumigation is in process.

What makes a cellar damp or nasty? Usually it is because some thrifty person is anxious to keep it sweet and lets in the warm air of the day. Warm air contains a large amount of moisture, which is precipi tated upon the cold walls, and it naturally follows that the cellar is first damp, then musty and, later, moldy Ventilate cellars only during cold nights

Now the butter. The cream should be ripened only to a point of pleasant acidity. Stop the churn when the draw, repeating this washing until the water runs out clear. Then sait one ounce to the pound with best dairy salt, mixing it in the fine grains in the churn by revolving or stirring. Next mass it into balls and set it aside to settle until the next morning.

Then work the butter a second time and pack it hard into sound, sweet stone jars, and over its hard-pressed, level ton spread a disk of parchment paper wet. On this lay fine salt an inch deep. Then tie a tough paper over the top to exclude dust, and place the jar at once in the coldest, cleanest part of the cellar. To make butter retain its quality, the temperature of the cellar should be maintained at as low and even a temperature as is possible Vegetables and other things that may produce odors must be excluded.

Do not be persuaded that the addition of saltpeter or sugar or any other substance is necessary to the preser ation of butter. Sait alone is needed. and one ounce to the pound is suffi-Never use a cracked or must; or "lardy" jar. The old-fashloned stone jar that is well glazed has never been superseded by anything better for holding butter. Where butter is to be consumed soon, of course, the washing is not needed, and the flavor will be higher if the buttermilk is not washed out.

KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these frritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a table-spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder dis-
